WINE AND FOOD TIPS

Much has been written about what should be served with what but this is essentially a matter of personal taste, these suggestions should only be used as a guide.

Sauvignon Blanc

A white wine best known for its grassy, herbal flavours. Sauvignon Blanc is also called Fume Blanc, and is a popular choice for fish and shellfish dishes.

Pinot Gris (Pinot Grigio)

The low acidity of this white varietal helps produce rich, lightly perfumed wines that are often more colourful than other whites. The best ones have pear and spice-cake flavours.

Chardonnay

A white wine can range from clean and crisp with a hint of varietal flavour to rich and complex oak-aged wines. Chardonnay typically balances fruit, acidity and texture. This varietal goes well with everything from fish and poultry, to cheese, spicy foods and nut sauces.

Muscat

The white Muscat grape produces spicy, floral wines that often do something most other wines don't; they actually taste like grapes. Muscat's can range from very dry and fresh to sweet and syrupy. The varietal is often served with puddings and chocolate desserts.

Gewürztraminer

A white wine that produces distinctive wines rich in spicy aromas and full flavours, ranging from dry to sweet. Smells and flavours of lychee nuts, gingerbread, vanilla, grapefruit and honeysuckle come out of this varietal. It is often a popular choice for Asian cuisines and pork-based sausages.

Riesling

White wines generally known for their floral perfume. Depending on where they're made, they can be crisp and bone-dry, full bodied and spicy or luscious and sweet. The flavour is often of peaches, apricots, honey and apples, and pairs well with duck, pork and roast vegetables.

Champagne/Sparkling Wine

These wines are made effervescent in the wine-making process. Champagnes and sparkling wines range in style from very dry (Natural), dry (Brut) and slightly sweet (Extra Dry) to sweet (Dec and Semi-Dec). Many sparkling wines are also identified as Blanc de Blancs (wines made from white grapes) or Blanc de Noirs (wines produced from red grapes)

Pinot Noir

A red wine of light to medium body and delicate, smooth, rich complexity with earthy aromas. They are less tannic than a cabernet sauvignon or a merlot. Pinot Noir exude the flavours of baked cherries, plums, mushrooms, cedar, cigars and chocolate.

Zinfandel

Primarily thought of as a Californian varietal (though proven to have originated from vineyards in Croatia), Zinfandel is a red wine with a light to full body and berry-like or spicy flavours. The Zinfandel grape is also widely used in the popular off-dry bush wine known as White Zinfandel. The Red Zinfandel pairs well with moderately spicy meat dishes and casseroles.

Syrah (Shiraz)

Syrah can produce monumental red wines with strong tannins and complex combinations of flavours including berry, plum and smoke. It's also known as Shiraz mainly in Australia and South Africa.

Petite Syrah

Red wines with firm, robust tannic tastes, often with peppery flavours. Petite Syrah's may complement meals with rich meats.

Merlot

A red wine with medium to full body and herbaceous flavours. Merlot is typically softer in taste than Cabernet Sauvignon. It's flavours and aromas include blackberry, baked cherries, plums, chocolate, and mocha.

Cabernet Sauvignon

A red wine known for its depth of flavour, aroma and ability to age. It is full-bodied, and intense, with cherry-currant and sometimes herbal flavours. Cabernet Sauvignon may have notable tannins.

*“food without wine is called breakfast”
